

SoTL DISSEMINATION FUND REPORT 2024

The Office of the Provost and VP Academic supports the dissemination of Scholarship of Teaching and Learning (SoTL) work with direct implications for UBC through the SoTL Dissemination Fund.

The Fund receives applications on a rolling basis and is managed and adjudicated by the Institute for the Scholarship of Teaching and Learning (ISoTL).

Any full-time faculty member at UBC can apply for the award, which can be used for conference registration and travel costs (up to $1,000) and/or Article Processing Charges (APC) or other fees related to publishing open access (up to $2,000).

SUCCESSFUL PROPOSALS

For a full list of successful applicants and additional information on their SoTL work, please visit: <https://isotl.ctlt.ubc.ca/services/sotl-dissemination-fund/awarded-grants/>

GIVING BACK TO THE SoTL COMMUNITY AT UBC

Recipients' commitment to give back to UBC includes active participation in Celebrate SoTL, CTLT Institutes, Celebrate Learning Week, Departmental Research Days, as well as presenting outcomes to committees and working groups.

REJECTED PROPOSALS

Reasons for proposal rejection include: research was not directly focused on teaching and learning or lacked limited implications for teaching and learning in higher education at UBC (as per criteria for the fund); contribution in preparation (i.e., had not been accepted at the time of application); applicant not meeting eligibility criteria; and incomplete application.
